

matrix

The highs and lows of the week in style

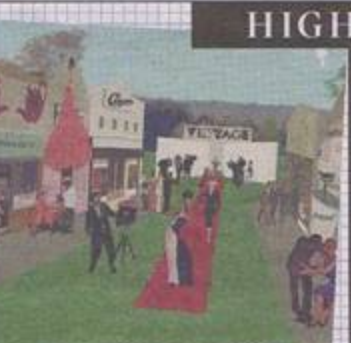

WE LIKE

WE DISLIKE

THE AMANDA WAKELEY WEDDING APP
Deep breaths, Bridezillas, table plans and gift lists are easy when you download Wakeley's brilliant new iPhone app and website - see theweddingplannerbyaw.com. Goodbye ringbinder, hello technology.

MIRPORTER.COM
Male shoppers rejoice: the Net-a-Porter brand is to open its arms to men from January 2011, selling Rick Owens, Burberry, Dunhill and others. Start saving now.

A FESTIVAL OF FASHION
Vintage at Goodwood will have a pop-up high street (Cath Kidston, Fortnum & Mason and more) and a vintage market with thousands of dresses and shoes. (August 13-15)

PRISM SUNGLASSES
The fashionista's favourite specs brand has now moved into sunglasses, and the designs are divine. See prismlondon.com

HIGH END

WEDDING WAISTCOATS
Brides, see through the fog of tradition and please don't put your groomsmen in shiny/pastel/matching waistcoats. What's wrong with pale grey? And don't even get us started on those cravats...

CZI'S FRINGE
Should we blame her or her hairdresser? Either way, the new haircut puts Catherine Zeta-Jones in our firing line. Mainly because she looks like Dot Cotton.

CHERYL COLE'S FAKETAN LINES
Everybody's favourite Geordie lass has all the money in the world, access to the best clothes, stylists and beauticians. Strange, then, that she also has tan marks around her wrists. At least it's not just us.

BOUTIQUE BY JAEGER
The high street stalwart wants to get some younger blood over its thresholds, and it has launched a very cool new range with which to entice them; goes on sale from September.

DESIGNER SPLASHMATS
Attack the rain in style with these plastic fantastics, designed by Erdem, Holly Fulton et al. They cost £9.99 and all proceeds go to The Teenage Cancer Trust. mandmdirect.com

ESPADRILLES
The unisex shoe of the season: goodbye gladiators.

HIGH STREET

BORING FATHER'S DAY GIFTS
Buy a book published the year he was born. Or a canoe. Anything but slippers.

PEACOCKS' MEGA BRA
Do we want a bra that makes our breasts appear two sizes bigger than their actual size? No, we do not. As Nicole Richie told us last week, a flat chest is fashionable. And we aren't arguing.

ENGLAND'S SUITS
Which is worse, Rob Green dropping the ball, or the England squad looking like a bunch of middle-management trainees? Fabio Capello, we apologise for replacing your bespoke Italian suits with Marks & Spencer.

THE TIMES

2 FOR 1 SPAS

Treat a friend or spoil yourself with our summer offer

Don't miss your guide, with details of all participating spas, inside The Times this Saturday.

